3-7-08

OCEAN STATE WEATHER ASSOCIATES

Steven R. Cascione President

Forecast issued 5:00 am Wednesday, December 12, 2007.....

Snow will develop Thursday afternoon between 2 pm and 6 pm with some sleet mixing in during the afternoon along the coast. Snow may be heavy at times during the evening rush hour.

Snow will end around midnight with accumulations of 3 to 6 inches possible but 2 to 4 inches along the immediate coast.
Temperatures will be in the 32 to 36 degree range Thursday afternoon but fall to 25 to 30 Thursday night.
Winds during the storm will range from 15 to 20 mph especially along the coastal areas.

Preliminary outlook for the weekend.....
A storm of snow and mixed precipitation may develop Saturday night and Sunday with the possibility of east to northeast gales.....

UPDATE 12/13/07 @ 8AM
5-9" IN PROV
HEAVY AT TIMES
START AROUND NOON-1PM
END @ MIDNIGHT

- 1PM RELEASE
- NO AFTER-SCHOOL ACTIVITIES

NO PM POP-UP

THURSDAY AFTERNOON + NIGHT.
- START SNOW AT 1 OR 2 PM STOP AT MIDNIGHT
3-6" TOTAL (ALL SNOW)

- SAT - SUN
5-9" (START SAT NIGHT AND SUNDAY AFTERNOON).
(COULD BE A MIX OF SLEET, RAIN + SNOW).

COPY