LIFE LONG LEARNERS PROGRAMS:

Discover the history of the Museum and its collections with these adult program offerings. Adults of all ages are invited. Pre-registration required.

Sacred Shapes and Woman Weavers: Basket Arts in Native American Culture

Thursday, January 24, 3:00pm-4:00pm

Did you know that a Native American woman might spend months making a single basket? Or that a well-made basket might mean the difference between life and death in the Desert Southwest? Discover how women as weavers, artists, and inventors contributed to their culture as Museum Docent Amy Tibbetts guides us through the Museum's basketry collection.

Treasures in the Attic: The Museum's Rhode Island Collection

Wednesday, February 13, 10:00pm -11:00am

Discover a hidden treasure in the Museum's Library and Archives. Explore the recently arranged special collection known as the "Rhode Island Collection" encompassing local natural history and other regional publications-many dating back over 100 years. This program is a must for scholars and students or anyone engaged in local historic research.

The Museum "Top to Bottom"

Tuesday, January 29, 10:00am-12:00pm

Tuesday, February 26, 10:00am-12:00pm

This new offering is a comprehensive look at the Museum of Natural History from the attic to the basement, featuring sections of the Museum not usually seen by the public. Join Museum Docent Mike McGinity for a tour from the archives in the attic to the basement storage vaults and everything in between.

Primarily Primates

Thursday, March 21, 11:00am-12:30pm

Join Museum Docent Heather Field for this brand new program featuring the Museum's extensive African ethnology collection. This offering will focus on the cultural and environmental significance of primates to the people of Africa.

Cost: $3.00 per adult. Sign up for all programs to receive a reduced fee of $2.00 per program.

Free for Museum Members!
